Dear Sir or Madam

I live in a house backing onto the fields you propose for building 60 or more houses. My road is already fighting for parking spaces, leaving access for traffic difficult at times. With junctions onto the Flookburgh road, causing near accidents, with the bends that have no speed restrictions. So another road end onto this busy road with the extra commuting traffic, will only heighten the risk of accidents. Would it not be better to utilize old derelict buildings or the old site on the A590, which latterly was an Indian Restaurant. Just spreading it out in small areas, so as not to damage small villages. When is a village not a village when it is a mish mash of old and new, drowning in traffic! Why is it just here in the North we destroy our heritage? Wales and Cornwall still have their quaint little villages. Let common sense prevail!
